The 4th Film Screening

La Cour de Babel (School of Babel)

In a teacher's final class, students from around the world—each with their own story—come together. A touching documentary about friendship that knows no borders.

Synopsis

From Ireland, Senegal, Brazil, Morocco, China... children aged 11 to 15 have arrived in France from all over the world. For the next year, they will share the same adaptation class at a junior high school in Paris.

Twenty-four students, twenty different nationalities—a multicultural classroom that feels like a miniature version of the world. These teenagers, just beginning their new lives in France, bring with them innocence, passion, and personal struggles. Can they overcome differences in religion and nationality to form genuine friendships? This moving documentary gently challenges our preconceptions and offers a powerful message of hope for the future.

[2013/ French with English and Japanese subtitles.]
